PREFACE.

At the opening of Queen's College, Belfast, in 1849, the newly-founded Library was lodged in the Great Hall of the College. In the year 1869 the present building, devoted exclusively to Library purposes, was opened. The old presses were transferred from the Great Hall, and fitted, as well as might be, in their new positions. This explains the irregularity in the numbering of the presses.

Soon the shelves began again to be crowded, and a number of smaller presses were placed in the recesses of the gallery. These presses received the distinguishing letter S in addition to their numbers. The heating of the Library by hot water-pipes made the large fire-places superfluous. The space obtained by their removal was occupied by new presses which received the distinguishing letter N in addition to their numbers, their running numbers being the same as those of the old presses containing books of the same class.

The Catalogues published previously to this one, are:—

Catalogue of Books in the Library of Queen's College, Belfast.	8vo.	1859.	178 pp.
Supplement I. - - - - -	8vo.	1860.	68 pp.
Supplement II. - - - - -	8vo.	1862.	64 pp.
Supplement III. - - - - -	8vo.	1871.	124 pp.
Supplement IV. - - - - -	8vo.	1878.	98 pp.

The Catalogue and Supplements were compiled by the Rev. George Hill, and printed by Alexander Mayne, Belfast.

There was further published a

Catalogue of Classical Books and Works relating to Patristic Literature, - - - - - -	8vo.	1887.	107 pp.

This Catalogue was compiled by Professor Dougan, assisted by Mrs. MacDouall, and printed by Alex. Mayne & Boyd, Belfast.

Three large Donations have been made to the Library, two of which are kept in separate presses and are distinguished in the Catalogue.

In the year 1880 the friends and former pupils of the late Professor MacDouall subscribed the sum of £275 for the purpose of purchasing from the library of Professor MacDouall a selection of classical and oriental works, to be deposited in the College Library, and to be called the MacDouall Library. These books are distinguished in the Catalogue by the letters (MacD.).

In the year 1887 Mrs. Cunningham and Professor Cunningham presented to the Library 225 volumes from the library of the late Dr. Adam Smith. These books are distinguished in the Catalogue by the letters (Ad.S.)

In the year 1873 the widow and children of the late John Robinson M'Clean, Esq., Civil Engineer, London, presented, through the hands of the Rev. P. S. Henry, D.D., the late President, the sum of Five Hundred Pounds, to be expended in the purchase of scientific works for the Library. These books are not kept separate, but are placed with the other books in their respective departments. They are to be distinguished by an ornamental book-plate recording the munificence of the donors.

The large type chosen for the names of authors in the new General Catalogue has no c à queue (ç) and does not mark the accents in French names. This slight disadvantage, affecting but few names, is more than compensated by the great clearness which it imparts to the whole page.

In English catalogues the German vowels ä, ö, ü, are now resolved into ae, oe, ue, and catalogued as following ad, od, ud; but in German catalogues and dictionaries the modified vowels, whether expressed by the dots or resolved into ae, oe, ue, are catalogued with the simple vowels a, o, u, so that Schäfer or Schaefer are entered alike as if spelled with the simple vowel a, Goethe or Göthe as Gothe, Bluemner or Blümner as if it were Blumner. The latter system had to be adopted in this catalogue as the preparation of the manuscript was carried on simultaneously with the printing. Some other slight variations from catalogue order are due to the same cause.

The entering of Periodicals in the General Catalogue is in accordance with the expressed wishes of some of the Professors, but a classified list of periodicals is added as an appendix.

Printing (which was frequently delayed for want of Manuscript) began in March, 1895, and was finished in December, 1896. All books added to the Library during that time were entered in the Catalogue so long as the respective initial letter was not printed off.

The Card Catalogue and the Manuscript of the General Catalogue were prepared, under the superintendence of the Librarian, by Mr. William Morgan, who was appointed for this purpose by the Library Committee. In the revision of the Manuscript the Librarian received valuable aid from Mr. William Taylor, Assistant Librarian, whose long service has made him familiar with all the departments of the Library, and from Mr. John Boyd, who also personally supervised the printing.
